Dear Mr. Newman,

Thank you for your interest in our display of paper money. Our website will give you an overview of the permanent displays in the Museum. If you go to our website, www.currencymuseum.ca, click onto "Explore the Museum", then select "Virtual Tour". You can click onto areas in the Galleries to see our display of paper money. Gallery 8 has panels that pull out to display the notes.

For more detail about mounting the notes themselves, I can tell you that we make envelopes of Mylar for each note. The Mylar envelope with the note in it is adhered to the display panel with acid-free, double-sided adhesive tape (3M #415). The next time we are making these Mylar envelopes, we can document the process and send you the images.

I enjoyed our recent conversation. All the best with your installation. If you have any further questions, please don't hesitate to get back to us.

Subject: How you display your paper money

Dear Friends:

Several weeks ago I spoke to your public relations officer about magnification of coins for your coin displays and learned that they were only temporarily used. I told her that we were building a new money museum on the campus of Washington University in St. Louis, Missouri. Now I would appreciate it if you could send us images of some of your displays of paper money. We have our display cases under construction and we are studying the ways to mount paper money within the display cases and would like to know how you do yours. We hope you are in a position to send us images of the way you mount your paper money, perhaps from brochures, photos, drawings, explanations or otherwise. We have nearly horizontal waist high lower display cases as well as vertical cases behind and above the others. Any details which you may care to describe are also welcome.

Naturally we will be glad to reciprocate on any matters we could be helpful to you with.

We would be grateful for your cooperation.
